First Thoughts:

I have always believed that the team that wins the qualifier game has an advantage over the rest of the field because they get to play 4 games before the rest of the field joins them. This might lead to fatigue at the end of the week, but they get to play on the ice early. Unfortunately like everybody else I didn't think that the qualifier would beat Ontario so I am semi-happy that Jamie Murphy made his draw to the pin in the 11th end against Ontario because there would have been a 7-way tie for a perfect day and that would have made the math hard to divide the money up. As it is Ian Jones wins day 1 because he wagered a meager 4 points on that game. Congratulations. The morning on Sunday's draw provided a lot of poor scores. 12 entries had 0 or 1 point after the first draw was over. In the afternoon, Ed Wilcox was the only person who correctly predicted qf to beat AB. Sunday night went off without issue and when the dust settled, there were a couple of entries that figured out the upsets of the day correctly. The top entry for Sunday was Don Catalano with an amazing 71 points. Nice picking Don!! After day 2 it is the eldest player in the pool Gylie Wilcox that tops the standings.

There are 26 entries this year. That means the total pot is $520 this final year.

The total available every day is  $$31.20 * 6 = $187.20$

- First overall will get $130.00
- Second overall will get $78.00
- Third overall will get $52.00
- Fourth overall will get $41.60
- Fifth overall will get $31.20
